GOLD AND GRIZZLIES.

Placer Mining on the McCulloch, French and Gold Creeks.

Remains of Billiard Tables Axes, Saws, Stoves—Road Building.

A Grizzly Bear Catches a Man by the Leg and Holds Him.

A correspondent writing from Donald station in the mountains, says: Since my last to you, I have paid a visit to the new discovery gold quartz mines on McCulloch creek, situated about sixty miles up the Columbia from its second crossing by the C. P. R. I left that crossing with five old miners in a pointed boat, four men walking along the beach, towing, while two of us remained in the boat, pulling and materially assisting in ascending the many rapids in the river. The evening of the sixth day brought us to Laporte, a steamboat landing, twenty years ago during the placer mining excitement on

MCCULLOCH, FRENCH AND GOLD CREEKS.

From this landing to the mouth of the first named creek (eighteen miles), we found a good trail which had formerly been the only means for the many thousands to get into the mines. At the mouth of these creeks we found remains of the McCulloch and French towns; these were destroyed by fire some years ago, still we found remains of old billiard tables, axes, saws, stoves and many other articles too expensive to freight out when the stampede occurred. Such is the character of this mining population; when they have a streak of bad luck and some new discoveries made, off they start leaving much of their goods behind. Having inspected the remains of this once lively little town of McCulloch, we went in search of the gold bearing quartz—of which we had heard so much, the old miners taking the lead; we ascended a mountain about three thousand feet high when four miles of a walk brought us to the veins or lodes, as they are termed. We found in all five veins, running from one to five feet in thickness, some of them being visible on the surface for one thousand feet. We found two of them had been stripped exposing particles of many very rich specimens having been found in the seam and honeycomb portions of the rock; these no doubt are the veins which fed the creek with gold, the veins having through ages become decomposed and worn down by glaciers—this point having been settled to the satisfaction of scientific men. The presumption is that if these veins were properly opened up they would prove fully as rich as any heretofore discovered.

GOLD VISIBLE TO THE NAKED EYE,

The British Columbia government, realising their value, have placed about fifty men cutting a good pack trail from the second crossing to the mines, so that by the middle of September capitalists will be able to ride all the way. No estimate can yet be made of their value. So far quite a number of capitalists have invested and intend putting down a shaft about fifty feet, getting out say twenty pounds weight out of each foot of the shaft, sending it to Swansea, Wales, having it thoroughly tested. Then if this average sample turns out as they have every reason to expect it will, they will commence operations with vigor next spring.

GRIZZLY BEARS.

When coming across the summit of the Selkirks a few days ago, I saw a young man, one of the telegraph repairers, being carried into camp; a history of his wounds I got from his companion. It appears the two of them were out for a ramble at the foot of the mountains at the summit and were separated 100 yards or so, when one of them laid down to drink out of one of those crystal streams that flow from the mountains, when suddenly the jaws of an immense grizzly caught him by the calf of the leg and tried to pull him into his cave, he put his arms around a tree and yelled for his companion who came close to the bear, so close that the shot scorched the bear's hair and emptied his seven Winchester balls into him behind the front leg, and as it afterwards appeared when the animal was opened, three of the balls actually going CLEAR THROUGH HIS HEART.

Seeing that the seven balls did not make him relinquish his hold, he caught the ferocious animal by the ears and actually tried to pull him off. Fortunately, for him, the animal kept his hold, still gnawing away at the poor fellow's leg. But the pulling caused the animal to move a little, thus enabling the friend to pull his companion's rifle from under the bear. He then commenced pouring his friend's seven bullets in the bear's head and had fired the last shot when over he rolled and gave up life. The trouble then was to get the jaws opened, to release his hold of the man's leg, this was done by inserting the barrel of one of the rifles and prying it open. The poor fellow being young and robust will, the doctor says, get over it, but it was the most interesting bear hunt that has ever occurred in the Selkirks. The man who stood so nobly by his companion is a young French Canadian about eighteen years of age. Who will say after this that French Canadians are wanting in pluck?

You will oblige many, and confer an act of justice on a number of respectable prospectors in the Big Bend district, by contradicting the statement which appeared in the Colonist of two weeks ago, that the Big Bend was all a humbug. Specimens have been found, and can be seen, which far exceed anything of the kind hitherto seen here, or was supposed did not exist, and some of these will be on exhibition in your city shortly.

Caught by an Oyster.

A remarkable circumstance is reported from Whitstable, England, by a local naturalist. Recently two or three oysters were put away in an earthen pan, and during the night a couple of young mice found out the dainty dish and inserted their mouths within the open shell of one of the bivalves. In the morning they were found fast held by the closed shells of the oysters and of course quite dead. The oyster continued its firm hold on the intruders, and the trio having been handed to Mr. Sibert Saunders, a member of the East Kent Natural History Society, were at once immersed in spirit, and will in due course be placed in the local museum.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The Governor-General's Reception.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—I have not yet heard one practical suggestion advanced towards the reception of the Governor-General. I would propose in place of the banquet, which is only for a few, that the day of reception be proclaimed a public holiday that races and other amusements on Beacon Hill be provided for by a committee appointed for this purpose; also, that the naval officers be invited to take part in the celebration which should be rendered suitable to the occasion. Also, that a committee be appointed to provide for a free banquet, to consist of breads, boiled hams, rounds and harrows of British Columbia beef, and Chilliwhack cheese, with a good supply of local beer, and something light for the ladies and children. On such an auspicious occasion like this everyone will be on an equality, rich and poor, young and old. Then in the evening, or on any other evening, if you wish to give the Governor General a high-toned banquet all right. I suppose it will be open to every respectable citizen, who wishes to attend by purchasing a ticket. Victoria is in a position to get up a first class banquet. We are well supplied with French cooks, who have been chief de cuisine to all the crown heads of Europe. You will be able to get a spread for $5, $10 or $20 a ticket. The kind of banquet the Governor General has a right to expect will cost $20 a ticket, providing a sufficient number agree to take tickets. At this figure, of course, a few will attend, for no other purpose than to hear their own played-out eloquence in an after dinner speech.

THE SCOTCH CHARACTER.

Mr. Talmage's Opinion of its Earnestness and Strength.

The famous Brooklyn divine, Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, has recently visited Great Britain and in a characteristic letter reviews his impressions of what he has seen and heard. Of the Scotchman he says: There is something about the Scotch character, whether I meet it in New York or London or Edinburgh, that thrills me through and through. Perhaps it is because I have such a strong tide of Scotch blood in my own arteries. Next to my own beloved country give me Scotland for residence and grave. The people are in such downright earnest. There is such a roar in their mirth, like a tempest in "The Trossachs." Take a Glasgow audience and a speaker must have his feet well planted on the platform or he will be overmastered by the sympathy of the populace They are not ashamed to cry, with their broad palms wiping away the tears, and they make no attempt at suppressing of glee. They do not simper; or snicker or chuckle. Throw a joke into a Scotchman's ear and it rolls down to the center of his diaphragm and then spreads out both ways toward foot and brow until the emotion becomes volcanic and from the longest hair on the crown of the head to the tip end of the nail on the big toe, there is a paroxysm of cachinnation. No half and half about the Scotch character. What he hates he hates. What he likes he likes. And he lets you know it right away. He is altogether Liberal or altogether Tory. His politics decided, his religion decided. Get him right and he is magnificently right. Get him wrong and he is awfully wrong. A Scotchman seldom changes. By the time he has fairly landed on his feet in this world he has made up his mind and keeps it made up. If he dislikes a fiddle in church you cannot smuggle it in under the name of a bass viol. We like persistence. Life is so short that a man cannot afford very often to change his mind. If the Israelites in the wilderness had had a few Scotch leaders, instead of wandering about for years they would in three weeks have gotten to the Promised Land or somewhere else, just as decided.

A ROYAL TRAIN.

Departure of the Queen from Osborne and Arrival at Balmoral.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince and Princess Henry of Battenburg, the children of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and the Hereditary Grand Duke of Hesse, left Osborne on Monday evening August 24th for Scotland. The Royal party crossed the Solent in Her Majesty's yacht to Gosport, where they were received by Prince George of Wales. A special train was in readiness at the private station. It consisted of an engine and thirteen carriages. The day and night saloons provided for Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice occupied a central position. Prince Henry of Battenburg and the Hereditary Grand Duke of Hesse traveled in the ninth saloon, next the Queen's, the other carriages being reserved for the children of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the ladies and gentlemen in attendance, and the domestics of Her Majesty's household. The Royal train left Gosport at 7.15 and arrived at Ballater (625½ miles) at 2.45 Tuesday afternoon. The train was piloted throughout the journey, and other precautions were taken for the Queen's safety. None of the public were admitted to any of the stations (with the exception of Ferryhill, Aberdeen) between Gosport and Ballater, inclusive, in order that Her Majesty might be undisturbed. The Royal party, on quitting the train at Ballater, drove at once to Balmoral. The Queen is expected to reside in Scotland till about the middle of November, when the Court will return to Windsor Castle.

Small-Pox in Montreal.

It is reported that the provincial board of health has received every assurance of co-operation in relation to the small-pox epidemic from every municipality communicated with, except St. Henri, the officials of which place informed the board that they would take the matter into consideration on Oct. 6. The board has resolved to take action under the sections of the regulations which authorize them to name a local board. Those persons charged with tearing down from houses placards announcing the presence therein of small pox will be prosecuted. The board has decided to ask the government to have all the inmates of institutions receiving aid, whether schools, jails, reformatories or asylums, vaccinated.

Mr. Walker, of the Ottawa School of Art and Science, intends sending an exhibit of 100 drawings to the Indian and Colonial Exhibition at London, England, next spring.

$65,000 WANTED

For the Construction and Repairs of Streets and Bridges.

Lighting the City—Police Barracks and other Purposes.

On Tuesday next the freehold electors of the city will record their vote on the by-laws to raise an aggregate loan of $65,000 on the city's debentures. Of the proposed loan the sum of $25,000 is for streets and sidewalks; $16,000 for lighting the city; $14,000 for police barracks and a lockup; $3000 for cleansing the gutters and $5000 for plans and specifications for the drainage of the city. The debentures are to run for twenty years, bearing interest at 6 per cent half yearly, payable at the Treasurer's office here. They will be issued in denominations of $100 and upwards, and made payable in either sterling or currency as desired. The total revised assessed value of the city is $5,000,000. To meet the proposed loan a sinking fund to the amount of $6324 will require to be raised yearly, during the currency of the debentures, by way of a special rate, so small that it will be imperceptible to the ratepayers.

THE DEBT OF THE CITY.

Outside the water works the debt of the city at present is in round numbers $20,000. The assets to offset this sum are the city hall lots $5019, the city hall building $16,500, and $2000 for the furniture and fittings; in all $23,519. No one will dispute these values to be correct, for if put to the hammer to-day more than the figures named could be realized for this valuable property. Then there is the electric light plant, and the fire extinguishing apparatus and buildings; ten acres at Spring Ridge, valued at $6000, and the round property, at $2000. Competent judges place the value of the whole assets at between $45,000 and $50,000.

OUR WATER WORKS.

On the construction of the water works the sum of $220,000 has been expended. The debenture indebtedness was $162,500; to the credit of that account there is deposited the sum of $50,000; leaving a net balance due of $112,500. The estimated revenue for the current year from this source will be $35,000; the working expenses and maintenance is placed at $6,000, leaving a net balance of $29,000. This is a showing that cannot be regarded in any other light than satisfactory in the highest degree to the ratepayers. The property is a valuable one; a fact known to private citizens, who have endeavoured to secure control of the system at a price that a few years ago would be considered as perfectly amazing.

THE CITY IS SPREADING

in every direction. Turn which way one will new buildings are being erected. In outlying sections of the city much property has been surveyed into city lots within the past year, and new buildings erected thereon. It is but fair to parties who purchased lots and erected houses—some of them being costly ones—that streets to their properties should be graded and sidewalks constructed. Old sidewalks in many places require a thorough overhauling, as well as new bridging to be built. The electric light contract has been confirmed by the council and the indebtedness can hardly be repudiated. The erection of police barracks can scarcely be put off any longer. The cleansing and improving of the street gutters is a commendable move. If drainage is ever to be undertaken, plans must be procured to form a basis of cost. It will be observed that every one of the five by-laws stands on its own merit.

The city must keep pace with private enterprise.

IT MUST GO AHEAD;

to stand still is to recede, a step we hope Victorians will never be accused of taking. No city in Canada, or in the United States, can present such a satisfactory financial condition as can Victoria. It is to be hoped property owners will next Tuesday consider the position the city is in, and that to a certain degree its future prosperity rests on their own shoulders, and cast their ballots in favor of the by-laws. The amount raised will be spent within ourselves, by ourselves and on ourselves. Work will be provided for many that are idle at present, and likely so to remain unless something can be done for them in this line. At present money is so abundant that a very high premium,—10 per cent., at least, could be realized on Victoria's debentures, if properly handled. The money is urgently desired and its expenditure will be in safe hands. It is now for the ratepayers to say whether the request of the council will be granted or otherwise.

COAL HARBOR.

If the C. P. R. Becomes Government Property the Extension to be Assumed.

During the debate in the Senate on Senator McInnes' amendment, the following discussion took place:

Hon. Mr. Dever—As I am about to vote on this motion, I should like to put one question to the Minister of Justice. It is this: In case the government of Canada will be compelled at some future day to take back this road from the company, will they have the power to also take the extension from Port Moody to Coal Harbor?

Hon. Sir Alex. Campbell—Yes.

Hon. Mr. Dever—Without any restriction or legal quibble?

Hon. Sir Alex. Campbell—Yes.

Hon. Mr. Dever—Then I am satisfied.

Superior to All Others.

L. F. Myers, the American athlete, who has just returned from Britain, has demonstrated his superiority to all other athletes, living or dead, at his favorite distances, and a dozen times or more, in fact, whenever favored with the weather and good path—surpassed all performances ever made by Englishmen at quarter-mile and half-mile, placing on record such an unparalleled series of exploits as quarter-miles in 49 4-5s., 49 2-5s., 49¼s., 49 1-5s., and 48 4-5s; quarter-miles on grass, twice in 49 2-5s.; 882 yards on grass in 1 m. 48.3-5s., and half-miles on grass, in 1m. 57.4-5s., 1m. 57⅕s., 1m. 57.2-5s., 1m. 57s., and 1m. 56⅕s.

An immense number of visitors were on the Toronto fair grounds one day last week, the estimated number being about 40,000. The parade and judging of horses in the horse ring was a grand sight.

ACROSS THE OCEAN.

The London Abduction Case.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Rebecca Jarrett, of the Salvation Army, Thomas W. Stead, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, Sampson Jaques, one of the staff of that paper, Mrs. Combe, Mr. Bramwell Booth, of the Salvation Army, and Louise Mowry, defendants in the abduction case of Eliza Armstrong, were committed for trial today. Mr. Russell, counsel for Mrs. Jarrett, reserves his line of defense.

During the proceedings Mr. Stead, acting as his own counsel, read a document containing his line of defence. He claimed that the end he had in view in carrying out his scheme justified the means he had resorted to. He admitted he might have been misled by the statements of Mrs. Jarrett who, if she procured the girl, Eliza Armstrong, by false pretenses as testified to by Mrs Armstrong, had obtained money from him fraudulently. The magistrate frequently protested against portions of the document, stating that the matter was irrelevant. The magistrate summed up the case strongly against defendants and said that nothing could justify their doings, nor publication of the nauseous articles in the Pall Mall Gazette. Bramwell Booth and Mrs. Coombe of indecent assault, but committed them as well as the rest of the prisoners on other charges.

GENERAL DESPATCHES.

Riot in Virginia—No one Hurt.

Special to THE TIMES.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 26.—This morning at 2:20 a serious riot occurred at Laughlin's mill, above Martin's Ferry, Ohio, in which at least two hundred shots were exchanged. The riot was precipitated by an attack upon the workmen in the mill by a number of armed men. The workmen had sentinels on guard or the result might have been more disastrous. From thirty to fifty men, armed with shot guns and revolvers, came up the railroad track from the direction of Martin's Ferry, and approached to within thirty paces of the mill, when the guards called out to them to halt. The men still advanced and in a second or two the command to halt was repeated without effect; a third time the mill guards called out halt, when the attacking party began firing, when the men in the mill returned the fire and brisk was the firing kept up for 20 or 30 minutes. The attacking party then ceased firing, and almost immediately retreated, going towards the river. An examination of the force in the mill showed that of the several shot only two are seriously hurt. Wm. Duff, the watchman, had 62 shots from a shotgun in his body, and Millard Bailley, shot through the thigh with a rifle ball. As far as can be learned four or five of the attacking party were hurt, one of them seriously. The force of armed men in the mill was 18 or 20. The attacking party and the ringleaders are known. The mill force, after their assailants had retired, rested on their arms, fearing another attack. At this hour, 9 o'clock, all is quiet, with no further indications of trouble.

The riot was occasioned by the introduction of non-union men in Laughlin's nail mill. The non-union men had been boarding and sleeping in the mill.

IN RUNNING ORDER

On the 22d October, Only 47 Miles Now to Complete.

An Ottawa dispatch of the 17th inst. says Sir Charles Tupper accompanied by Mr. C. Schrieber and by Mr. Pottinger, of the Intercolonial Railway, will leave at daylight to-morrow for Winnipeg by the North Shore Superior route. They will go thence to British Columbia by the Northern Pacific. Mr. Schrieber will return via the C. P. R., which will be in running order by the 22nd of October, there being now but forty-seven miles to be rolled between the eastern end of Onderdonk's section and the western end of the C. P. R. construction.

The Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William and the other members of the German Imperial family have arrived at Stuttgart.

There are 1,500 candidates in the field for the French Chamber of Deputies. Of these 500 have previously occupied seats in the chamber.

THE RIVER BITTEN.

Guildy, the Murderer, Fires at His Pursuers and is Killed in Return.

Press Dispatch.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 26, 1885.

From parties just in from Mud Bay it is learned that a party of twelve armed men, who were searching for John Guildy, the murderer of Mr. Mayfield, discovered him asleep last Thursday in the immediate neighborhood of the murder. Guildy jumped up and fired, the bullet going through the hat of one of the party. They at once returned the fire, killing him instantly, all but one of the bullets taking effect in Guildy's body.

Superintendent Boycraft Ill.

Press Dispatch.

YALE, B. C. Sept. 26, 1885.

Superintendent Boycraft is ill at Hope with inflammation of the bowels. Doctor Langis has just left to give the necessary medical assistance.

GRANITE CREEK.

All the Claims Yielding Well—Rains Wash Away the Wing-dams.

A correspondent, "Granite Creek," sends THE TIMES a few items relative to affairs in the above section of country, which is now attracting so much interest.

All the claims on the creek were doing well until about a week ago, when a heavy rain storm sent the creek up booming and washed most of the wing dams out. At the date of writing, however, the weather was clear and fine, and the creek had resumed its normal condition. It is expected that there will be at least six weeks more work done, but owing to the impossibility of some of the claims starting again this year, they have been laid over until the 15th of June next. This has afforded many men an opportunity of visiting the

NEW DIGGINGS ON BEAR CREEK.

These are reported to be rich. Should this be the case there is room for a large number of men on that creek in addition to the above there have been fine prospects struck on several other creeks, and there will doubtless be a large mining population here soon.

A most urgent need, however, is that a constable should be appointed immediately. Numerous cases have occurred lately of drunken men recklessly firing off their pistols to the common danger of everybody in camp. Several so-called desperadoes have also made things lively, and yesterday a most unfortunate affair happened, of which Mr. James Newland of Savona Ferry, was the victim, who, while standing at his tent, was shot over the left eye by one of them. Grave fears were at first entertained that the injury was fatal, but at last accounts there are hopes of his recovery. Unless prompt action is taken in the matter it is feared that serious disturbances may take place and loss of precious lives result therefrom. A very undesirable class from across the lines are arriving at the camp who are regardless of either law or order. The miners do not desire to form vigilant committees when it is the duty of the government to protect their lives and property. Immediate action therefore is necessary.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A NEW PARTY.

There recently assembled in the city of Toronto a convention of the young Liberals of the province of Ontario. The meeting was attended by delegates from every section of the province, and was pre-eminently representative of the most advanced political thought of what is most unquestionably the most democratic province in the Dominion. From this convention has sprung a third political party, or perhaps it would be more correct to say that Grittism has been incinerated and from its ashes has arisen the Young Liberal party—vigorous, cohesive, aggressive. Here in British Columbia we have not troubled ourselves much in the past with the party politics of the east. The Grittism and Toryism of Ontario, or the factional enmities of the Rouges and the Blues of Quebec, are alike exotics to our soil and it will be a long time before they become acclimated and flourish with the same rank growth that they have done in those provinces. Our province has been too busy fighting for its rights—our people have been too earnest in concentrating their energies for the accomplishment of practical issues, such as securing the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Graving Dock and the Island Railway, to the almost total exclusion of the theoretical in politics—to participate in the bickerings of the two parties which have been fighting for the flesh pots at the seat of the government and centre of political corruption.

And yet the time may come—beyond a doubt it is absolutely certain to come—when party lines will be more clearly defined in British Columbia. THE TIMES does not advise it, or wish for it; but nevertheless we believe it to be as inevitable as the final completion of our great public works, and, perhaps, contemporaneous therewith. If such should be the case, it will be both interesting and profitable to know something about this new party which has been recently constructed, and embodies, and courageously proclaims, the principles and aspirations of the New Liberalism. The platform of the Young Liberals, as laid down at the convention, embraces a number of subjects. It proposes several reforms of a sweeping character, involving radical changes in our constitution, system of government, and relations with the mother country. THE TIMES can endorse some of the propositions advanced, and believing these to be for the best interests of our country, will extend to them a cordial support. But it dissents from others, realizing them to be too radical in their tendency, and too advanced to meet with the approval of the people or to fill the requirements of our present status as a nation. In future issues we will take occasion to discuss the several clauses of the platform which has met with a modified approval from a section of the Conservative press as well as a major portion of the Liberal journals.

THERE can be no doubt about it, the Canadian Protectionists are alarmed. In some cases scurrility and innuendoes have taken the place of arguments—a conclusive sign of panic and weakness. The Commercial Union cry set up by THE WEEK is eagerly discussed, and has been boldly adopted by not a few who have shaken themselves free from prejudice and party. Men who have the courage of their opinions are not likely, we suppose, to be influenced by the disingenuous attempt to identify Commercial Union with Annexation, and so to discredit a policy which would vastly and immediately increase the prosperity of Canada as a whole and Ontario in particular.

It was not many months ago that the dispatches told how wroth the Czar was with General Komaroff because the latter had gone beyond his orders and brought about the Penjdeh incident. It was said the outheaded General would be degraded and otherwise be made to suffer for his blunder. Since then Komaroff has been decorated, the Czar has written him a personal letter thanking him for his services, and now the latest gift is a grant of $50,000 for a house at Askabad. It pays to serve the Czar, and the surest way to serve him in Asia is to extend the Russian boundaries toward India.

HON. EDWARD BLAKE.

If but a tithe of that which appears in the Conservative press is to be accepted as truth, the above gentleman, is an absolute failure as a politician, and his position as leader of Her Majesty's loyal opposition in the Dominion Parliament, is at once to be filled by another. To sustain them in the crusade they have inaugurated against that honorable gentleman, the Conservative press quote occasionally from Liberal journals sentiments that may appear, when garbled, to be written in hostility to MR. BLAKE and his policy. As a general rule the Liberal press is not so subservient in its criticisms of its party, and leaders as is the Ministerial press, for the very good reason, that there is no government "pap" in jeopardy, and no loss likely to follow candid expressions. To expect an unbiased opinion, or a free criticism of its leaders and their measures from the Ministerial press, would therefore be considered one of the wonders of the age. MR. BLAKE'S policy on several questions of the day has been discussed by his own followers and the Liberal press freely. But in doing so their aim has been to arrive at a fuller understanding, and an appreciation of the position they occupy before the country. The talk of deposing MR. BLAKE, as leader of his party is all moonshine, and only exists in the imagination of those who are but too anxious that such a step should be taken. There is not the most remote idea of making any change, nor is there any desire to supplant the most talented man Canada has yet produced, even by another equally distinguished gentleman—Hon. OLIVER MOWAT, Premier of his native province, Ontario; a position which he attained when the HON. MR. BLAKE resigned in his favor. At no time in the history of the Liberal party did their leader command such unbounded confidence and esteem as does MR. BLAKE at present.

The following extract is taken from a letter written a few days ago by MR. F. W. GLENN, the famous Oshawa manufacturer, and M. P. for South Ontario in the Commons. MR. GLENN is a naturalized Canadian. There are several prominent Liberals in eastern Canada of American birth, many of whom are members of the Commons and Legislative Assemblies. MR. GLENN says:

"It is to be regretted that some members of the Liberal press seem to feel called upon to apologize for the words and ways and public policy of the Hon. Edward Blake. It is uncalled for and quite unnecessary. Mr. Blake is undoubtedly the greatest intellectual power in public life on this continent since President Lincoln, Secretary Seward and Senator Sumner passed away. He possesses Lincoln's sublime faith in the Divine origin and brotherhood of man; his wonderful power to wait for the wise moment for action, and his hatred of all shams and false pretences. He is inspired by Lincoln's controlling desire to serve mankind and to elevate all classes of his countrymen, and with this he combines the profound sagacity and prophetic power of Secretary Seward and the intimate knowledge of State affairs, the mental culture, intellectual force, eloquence, purity of life, and unsullied honor of Senator Sumner. I have known Mr. Blake for 22 years as a lawyer, as a political opponent, as Premier of Ontario, as the Minister of Justice of Canada, as foremost member of my church, as my leader in Parliament, as the leader of the great Liberal party of Canada, and as a sympathetic generous, unselfish, tender, loving, personal friend. He stands to-day, after 20 years of public life, unspotted before the world, the grandest personage in Canadian history."

In somewhat strong language a contrast is here drawn between SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD, G. C. B., and MR. BLAKE by MR. GLENN. From his standpoint there is nothing good or worthy of commendation to be found in the premier or those associated with him in the government of the country. He changes them with every species of corruption; says:

"The mills of the gods grind slow, but they grind small, and if we as a people hesitate to cast the money changers out of the national temple at Ottawa, we assume a terrible responsibility. Any man in public life in the United States guilty of a tithe of the crimes which the leader of the government of Canada is charged, would have been cast into a bottomless political sea with a millstone about his neck. It is the only safe and wise way to deal with those who betray public trusts."

"In sublime contrast stands the great leader of the Opposition, giving up freely his life's work, his time, his talents, his comfort, devoting his great powers in endeavoring to deliver his country from evil, and to lead his fellow-countrymen back to those homely but honest ways which are ways of pleasantness and peace. I can remember when the leading Democrats of the United States shouted hosannas to W. M. Tweed. We all know his hideous end, when even his friends forsook him and fled. I heard the same shout at Ottawa last winter. The end is drawing near. The Honorable Edward Blake, as the trusted and beloved leader of the Liberal party, will yet cast out the traitors and deliver this country, and inaugurate a vigorous, healthy and pure policy in the administration of public affairs in Canada. Those who are impatient at Mr. Blake's wonderful patience may well recall the sublime words of James Russell Lowell, the United States Minister to England, which is the history of the struggle between Toryism and Liberalism from the days of Cain and Abel until now.

Truth forever on the scaffold;
Wrong forever on the throne,
Yet that scaffold sways the future;
And behind the dim unknown
Standeth God within the shadow
Keeping watch above his own.

PRAIRIE fires have been desolating many counties of Dakota. Great numbers of settlers have been burned out, losing buildings crops and animals, and in some instances the people have perished in the flames.

THE Highlanders are in for a movement to wipe out men who are their masters. "No rent and the landlords to pay the taxes" will doubtless be their war cry until substantial concessions are granted.

KING'S EVIL

WAS the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

IN LUCK AT LAST

BY WALTER BESANT.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

Mr. James suddenly ceased grinning, because he observed a look in his patron's eyes which alarmed him.

"About that safe. You must find out for me where the old man has put his money, and what it is worth. Do you hear? Or else——"

"How can I find out? He won't tell me any more than you."

"Or else you must put me in the way of finding out." Mr. Joseph lowered his voice to a whisper. "He keeps the keys on the table before him. When a customer takes him out here, he leaves the keys behind him. Do you know the key of the safe?"

"Yes, I know it."

"What is to prevent a clever, quick-eyed fellow like you, mate, stepping in with a bit of wax—eh? While he is talking, you know. You could rush it in a moment."

"It's—it's dangerous, Mr. Joseph."

"So it is—rather dangerous—not much. What of that?"

"I would do anything I could to be of service to you, Mr. Joseph; but that's not honest, and it's dangerous."

"Dangerous! There's danger in the briny deep and shipwreck on the blast, if you come to danger. Do we, therefore, jolly mariners afloat, over think of that? Never. As to honesty, don't make a man sick."

"Look here, Mr. Joseph. If you'll give me a promise in writing that I'm to have the shop as soon as you get it, at a fair valuation and easy terms—say ten per cent down, and——"

"Stow it, mate; write what you like, and I'll sign it. Now about that key!"

"Stow it, mate; write what you like, and I'll sign it. Now about that key!"

"Supposing you were to get a duplicate key, and supposing you was to get into trouble about it, Mr. Joseph, should you—should you—I only put it to you—should you up and round upon the man as got you that key?"

"Foxy, you are as suspicious as a Chinaman. Well, then, do it this way. Send it me in a letter, and then who is to know where the letter came from?"

The assistant nodded.

"Then I think I can do the job, though not, perhaps, your way. But I think I can do it. I won't promise for a day or two."

"There you spoke like an honest pal and a friendly shipmate. Dangerous! Of course it is. When the roaring winds do blow—Hands upon it, brother. Foxy, you've never done a better day's work. You are too crafty for any sailor—you are, indeed. Here, just for a little key——"

"Hush, Mr. Joseph! Oh, pray—pray don't talk so loud! You don's know who may be listening. There's Mr. Lala Roy. You never hear him coming."

"Just for a trifle of a key you are going to get possession of the best book shop in all Chelsea. Well, keep your eyes skinned and the wax ready, will you? And now, James, I'll be off."

"Oh, I say, Mr. Joseph, wait a moment!" James was beginning to realize what he had promised. "If anything dreadful should come of this! I don't know what is in the safe. There may be money as well as papers."

"James, do you think I would steal? Do you mean to insinuate that I am a thief, sir? Do you dare to suspect that I would take money?"

James certainly looked as if he had thought even that possible.

"I shall open the safe, take out the papers, read them, and put them back just as I found them. Will that do for you?"

He shook hands again, and took himself off.

At 7 o'clock Mr. Emblem came down stairs again.

"Has any one been?" he asked as usual.

"Only Mr. Joseph."

"What might Mr. Joseph want?"

"Nothing at all."

"Then," said his grandfather, "Mr. Joseph might just as well have kept away."

Let us anticipate a little. James spent the next day hovering about in the hope that an opportunity would offer of getting the key in his possession for a few moments. There was no opportunity. The bunch of keys lay on the table under the old man's eyes all day, and when he left the table he carried them with him. But the day afterwards he got his chance. One of the old customers called to talk over past bargains and former prizes. Mr. Emblem came out of the back shop with his visitor, and continued talking with him as far as the door. As he passed the table—James's table—he rested the hand which carried the keys on it, and left them there. James pounced upon them and slipped them into his pocket noiselessly. Mr. Emblem returned to his own chair and thought nothing of the keys for an hour and a half by the clock, and during this period James was out on business. When Mr. Emblem remembered his keys he felt for them in their usual place and missed them, and then began searching about and cried out to James that he had lost his bunch of keys.

"Why, sir," said James, bringing them to him, after a little search, and with a very red face, "here they are; you must have left them on my table."

And in this way the job was done.

CHAPTER III.

IRIS THE HERALD.

By a somewhat remarkable coincidence it was on this very evening that Iris first made the acquaintance of her pupil, Mr. Arnold Arbuthnot. These coincidences happen oftener in real life than they do on the stage, where people are always turning up at the very nick of time and the critical moment.

I need little persuasion to make me believe that the first meeting of Arnold Arbuthnot and Iris, on the very evening when her cousin was opening matters with the Foxy one, was nothing short of providential. You shall see, presently, what things might have happened if they had not met. The meeting was, in fact, the second of the three really important events in the life of a girl. The first, which is seldom remembered with the gratitude which it deserves, is her birth; the second, the first meeting with her future lover; the third, her wedding day; the other events of a woman's life are interesting, perhaps, but not important.

Certain circumstances, which will be in due time duly explained, connected with this meeting, made it an event of very considerable interest to Iris, even though she did not suspect its immense importance. So much interest that she thought of nothing else for a week afterwards; that on the appointed evening she grew near and trembled and grew pale; that when her grandfather came up for his tea, she, who was usually so quick to discern the least sign of care or anxiety in his face, actually did not observe the trouble, plainly written in his drooping head and anxious eyes, which was due to his interview with Mr. David Chalifer.

She poured out the tea, therefore, without one word of sympathy. This would have seemed hard if her grandfather had expected any. He did not, however, because he did not know that the trouble showed in his face, and was trying to look as if nothing had happened. Yet in his brain were ringing and vibrating the words, "Within three weeks—within three weeks," with the regularity of a horrid clock at midnight when one wants to go to sleep.

"Oh," cried Iris, forced, as young people always are, to speak of her own trouble; "oh, grandfather, he is coming to-night!"

"Who is coming to-night, my dear?" and then he listened again for the ticking of that clock: "Within three weeks—within three weeks." "Who is coming to-night, my dear?"

He took the cup of tea from her, and sat down with an old man's deliberation, which springs less from wisdom and the fullness of thought than from respect to rheumatism.

The iteration of that refrain, "Within three weeks," made him forget everything, even the trouble of his granddaughter's mind.

"Oh, grandfather, you cannot have forgotten!"

She spoke with the least possible touch of irritation, because she had been thinking of this thing for a week past, day and night, and it was a thing of such stupendous interest to her that it seemed impossible that any one who knew of it could forget what was coming.

"No, no." The old man was stimulated into immediate recollection by the disappointment in her eyes. "No, no, my deary. I have not forgotten. Your pupil is coming. Mr. Arbuthnot is coming. But, Iris, child, don't let that worry you. I will see him for you, if you like."

"No; I must see him myself. You see, dear, there is the awful deception. Oh, how shall I tell him?"

"No deception at all," he said stoutly. "You advertised in your own initials. He never asked if the initials belonged to a man or to a woman. The other pupils do not know. Why should this one? What does it matter to him if you have done the work for which he engaged your services?"

"But, oh, he is so different! And the others, you know, keep to the subject."

"So should he, then. Why didn't he?"

"But he hasn't. And I have been answering him, and he must think that I was drawing him on to tell me more about himself; and now, oh, what will he think? I drew him on and on—yet I didn't mean to—till at last he writes to say that he regards me as the best friend and the wisest adviser he has ever had. What will he think and say? Grandfather, it is dreadful!"

"What did you tell him for, Iris, my dear? Why couldn't you let things go on? And by telling him you will lose your pupil."

"Yes, of course; and, worse still, I shall lose his letters. We live so quietly here that his letters have come to me like news of another world. How many different worlds are there all round one in London? It has been pleasant to read of that one in which ladies go about beautifully dressed always, and where the people have nothing to do but to amuse themselves. He has told me about this world in which he lives, and about his own life, so that I know everything he does and where he goes; and"—here she sighed heavily—"of course it could not go on forever; and I should not mind so much if it had not been carried on under false pretences."

"No false pretences at all, my dear. Don't think it."

"I lost back his last cheque," she said, trying to find a little consolation for herself.

"But yet——"

"Well, Iris," said her grandfather, "he wanted to learn heraldry, and you have taught him."

"For the last three months"—the girl blushed as if she was confessing her sins—"for the last three months there has not been a single word in his letters about heraldry. He tells me that he writes because he is idle, or because he wants to talk, or because he is alone in his studio, or because he wants his unknown friend's advice. I am his unknown friend, and I have been giving him advice."

"And very good advice, too," said her grandfather benevolently. "Who is so wise as my Iris?"

"I have answered all his letters, and never once told him that I am only a girl."

"I am glad you did not tell him, Iris," said her grandfather; but he did not say why he was glad. "And why can't he go on writing his letters without making any fuss?"

"Because he says he must make the acquaintance of the man—the man, he says—with whom he has been in correspondence so long. This is what he says."

She opened a letter which lay upon a table covered with papers, but her grandfather stopped her.

"Well, my dear, I do not want to know what he says. He wishes to make your acquaintance. Very good, then. You are going to say him, and to tell him who you are. That is enough. But as for deceiving"—he paused, trying to understand this extreme scrupulosity of conscience—"if you come to deceiving—well, in a kind of a sort of way you did allow his to think his correspondent a man. I admit that. What harm is done to him? None. He won't be so mean, I suppose, as to ask for his money back again."

"I think he ought to have it all back," said Iris; "yes, all from the very beginning. I am ashamed that I ever took any money from him. My face burns when I think of it."

To this her grandfather made no reply. The returning of money paid for services rendered was, to his commercial mind, too foolish a thing to be even talked about. At the same time Iris was quite free to manage her own affairs. And then there was that roll of papers in the safe. Why, what matter if she sent away all her pupils? He changed the subject.

"Iris, my dear," he said, "about this other world, where the people amuse themselves; the world which lives in the squares and in the big houses on the Chelsea embankment here, you know—how should you like, just for a change, to belong to that world and have no work to do?"

"I don't know," she replied carelessly, because the question did not interest her.

"You would have to leave me, of course. You would sever your connection, as they say, with the shop."

"Please, don's let us talk nonsense, grandfather."

"You would have to be ashamed, perhaps, of ever having taught for your living."

"Now that I never should be—never, not if they made me a duchess."

"You would go dressed in silk and velvet. My dear, I should like to see you dressed up just for once, as we have seen them at the theatre."

"Well, I should like one velvet dress in my life. Only one. And if should be crimson—a beautiful, deep, dark crimson."

"Very good. And you would drive in a carriage instead of an omnibus; you would sit in the stalls instead of the upper circle; you would give quantities of money to poor people; and you would buy as many second-hand books as you pleased. There are rich people, I believe, ostentatious people, who buy new books. But you, my dear, have been better brought up. No books are worth buying till they have stood the criticism of a whole generation at least. Never buy new books, my dear."

And Yet Not on Well.

[Chicago Herald.]

More is required of young ladies in society than of young men. A young man must not be beautiful, must not sing, play or say anything intelligent. He may be positively idiotic and yet get on well in society, as is shown in numerous instances.

THE FASHIONS

Short Dresses.

Once more it is in fashion to wear skirts of a decent short walking length. This is especially true as far as young ladies are concerned. The dresses clear the ground and just cover the ankle. It gives a youthful cut to the figure, too. At the same time it is a blessed relief from dust, mud and the unspeakable street sweepings that make life a burden to a clean-minded woman in a long dress. With a neat book the short dress is much prettier than the long one. There is no beauty, or gracefulness either, in a long skirt flip-flapping about the feet, shaking the abominations of street dust up into the snowy skirts and nice, clean hose at every step.

English women, it is said, are trying to make a movement against the short skirt and to introduce the style of having the walking dress "just touch" in the back. It is a dirty fashion. Long, sweeping dresses are pretty and artistic for the house, but for the street—heaven save us!

Carpets.

American artists in gold, silver, silk and wool are rivaling those of the Old World, none more successfully than the carpet-makers. The Glenham Wilton carpets abandon set designs. They are simply beds of flowers in graceful relief on grounds of mellow ivory, cream color or gray, olive or intense blue. Nodding white lilies, golden rod, white alder and leafage of the darkest shaded green trail over the soft, velvety surface; or there are green branches, like plumes, brown-orange blooms of wallflower, feathered grasses, and a tangled mass of varied green foliage on a black ground. Large, dull-red Oriental flowers, with red and green foliage, closely cover a mustard-colored ground. There are naturally, to please all tastes, some block-shaped set designs in cashmere colors on dark blue, olive and citron grounds. These Wilton carpets in color and design are equal, if not superior, to the English Axminster. A celadon blue ground is seen in glimpses between the graceful branches of the Mazoon trees and some blossoms of white, and the pink of apple blossoms; and a delicate mastic ground is a wilderness of the golden pathzies of plain flowers exquisitely shaded and colored and "lush and lusty" grasses. Other styles are in light olive, with Indian pink and flowers and huge leaves. A light fawn ground is covered with tropical plants and flowers and trailing branches; here and there are glimpses of a bit of trellis work.

The body Brussels carpets are also in brilliant contrasts of ground and design, a blue du roi ground shows dark golden arabesques in lights and shadows contrasted with others of a lighter tint, mingled with acanthus leafage and pomegranate blossoms. Shaded citron color Mauresque designs on a white ground, in seeded golden dots, look like finest embossed work with blue stitches set in here and there. Japanese designs in quiet colors cover an ecru ground. Some other elaborate styles closely resemble the intricacies of a camel's hair shawl; the general effect is rich and mellow, having almost the appearance of work by hand. All of these carpets are accompanied by wide and beautiful borders, embodying all the colors and smaller designs with additions of corner scroll work or medallions with realistic flowers of blackberry vines and golden rays radiating from the center.

The present ingrain carpets offer the strongest possible contrast to those of a few years ago, of hideous colors and styles. These copy the more costly productions of the loom. For instance: A creamy ground seems sown and bunched with feathery ferns and catkins, and a mixed ground of olive and white is covered with red branches of flowers and sprays. These are set designs on other grounds of gold color, dull reds and Oriental red and black shaded arabesques. Pretty chintz patterns show pale rose with gray in quaint little design, and the Mauresque effects are also copied. The ingrains are not by any means to be despised.

Panama Hats.

These are now worn by ladies at the seashore. They neither kilt nor "muss." The famous Panama hats are all made in Guayaquil, Ecuador, and get their name because Panama merchants formerly controlled the trade. They are made of the pita fibre, a sort of palm, and are braided under water by native women of strands often twelve and fifteen feet long, and fine ones are very expensive. It often takes two or three weeks to braid a single hat, which sells for $5 or $6, and lasts forever. A traveler speaks of one made of a single straw or fibre as fine as thread and as soft as silk. The woman who made it was engaged four months in the work, and it was valued at $250.

The Roman Corsage.

A very gay corsage made of wide Roman sashes is worn by young ladies to brighten up skirts of white or black lace, and give variety to their toilets by having this extra bodice to change with the lace basque that belongs to the skirts. This is a tight-fitting round waist with V neck, made of the sashes arranged with the stripes going across. The sleeves are of lace to suit the skirts, and there is a full sash and black drapery in the pretty Roman coloring; the pale sashes with blue, pink and white bars are worn by blondes, while those who are darker choose the deeper colors with brighter red, green and black stripes.

Little Girls' Frock.

FRONT. BACK.

The graceful fashions that ruled so long in children's frocks were shoved aside by the clumsy Mother Hubbard gown, which made little girls, if not big ones, look the shape of a barrel. But Mother Hubbard's day seems drawing to a close. We have a revival of the pretty princess dress and other shapes that outlined the plump, cupid-like forms of our babies somewhat. Everybody with any pretensions to taste ought to be glad of it. Here is a jaunty costume for a small girl. The low-neck frock is cut princess, open before down to the hips; then a full, short skirt is gathered on. The goods is cut bias. A straight piece of the material forms the sash. The fabric is a small check or Scotch plaid, trimmed with narrow velvet braiding and ribbon.

Braided Trimmings.

Braids and galloons, woven, brocaded and embroidered, continues in vogue, and will form the trimmings most generally used this summer. They are arranged in the guise of bretelles on corsages, around the lower edge of basques, at the wrist of sleeves and extending up the seam, as a border on skirts and overskirts, and finally, the richest and most striking are used to define panels and tablets on skirts, and for ornamenting wrappings of all shapes.

Mastering Rubber Jewelry.

Rubber jewelry that has faded can be restored to black by rubbing with a paste made of rotten-stone and sweet-oil.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Before purchasing Real Estate or insuring your life, see Rand Bros.

—The letter of "Sol" will appear on Monday.

—The Yosemite brought 10,630 cases of salmon this afternoon from the mainland.

—Mr. John Finlayson is moving into his new premises, corner of Government and Broughton streets.

—On Monday week the Canadian Pacific from Montreal to the Columbia river will be thrown open for traffic.

—Major Dupont is prepared to furnish forms of application to persons who intend to apply at next examinations.

—A mounted school of infantry for the Northwest, has been established at Winnipeg.

—Messrs. G. Robertson & Co. have special bargains in Victoria and Coal Harbor properties.

—Mr. Uriah Nelson's Eagle Pass stock has been sold to Mr. R. E. Lemon for $3500. It goes to Eagle Pass.

—Fourteen Chinamen arrived by the Queen to-day and contributed $700 for governmental purposes.

—The election of officers for the Fire Department takes place on Monday at the office of the board of delegates at 12 o'clock noon.

—The new theatre is rapidly approaching completion. It is said that next Saturday evening will find the edifice ready for occupation.

—Mrs. Hamilton, mother of Attorney-General Hamilton, mayor of Winnipeg, died in that city a few days since. She was a native of St. Catharines, Ont.

—The Amelia left this morning at 7 o'clock with excursionists to the Cowichan agricultural show, held at Maple Bay. She will return this evening.

—In a few days Mrs. Whitlaw will be prepared to open out a stock of the latest leading novelties in millinery, imported by her, direct from Paris, London and New York.

—Mr. J. B. Leighton, who left Granite Creek last Tuesday, reached this city to-day. The recent rains washed out three miles of wing-dams, but miners started to erect them last Monday.

—The eclipse of the moon on Wednesday night was distinctly visible here, the moon entering the shadow at 10 p. m. At 11.37 p.m., the middle of the eclipse, the shadow was distinctly marked.

—In answer to a correspondent THE TIMES believes Lord Lansdowne to be a mixture of English, Irish, Scotch and French extraction; the Irish vein predominating.

—In our notice of the funeral services of the late Mr. Charles yesterday, the name of Mr. Beanlands who conducted the services with the Lord Bishop should have been mentioned.

—Mr. John Weiler, Fort street, is now offering for sale a large quantity of new furniture, carpets, wall papers, etc. Also a large and well selected stock of crockery, glassware, etc. Particulars in next issue.

—In addition to the factory, Mr. Sehl is constructing a very handsome residence on Laurel Point. The design is by Mr. Apponyi. The cost of the various buildings, wharf &c., will be over $35,000.

—Toronto World: Greatness is, after all, somewhat a matter of size. Jumbo has been honored with obituaries a column long in several of the London papers. So much space would not be devoted to a dead Canadian member of parliament by the English press.

—Water pipes are being laid along Menzies, Michigan, Oswego and Simcoe streets, and an extension to Rithetville wharf. A large number of residents will thus be accommodated, together with the steamers, which should largely increase the water revenue.

—The city weighing machine was inspected yesterday by Mr. R. Jones, and found correct. He says that it shall be liable to fluctuation if exposed to the weather. A report to that effect will be made to the City Council, and a covering recommended.

—"An Active Citizen" in another column suggests a public holiday to be proclaimed the day His Excellency Lord Lansdowne arrives in Victoria, with games &c. on Beacon Hill. He also suggests other amusements which are worthy of consideration. Read his letter.

—This morning Messrs. James Fell & Co., had a strange customer visit their establishment in the shape of a live pheasant. This beautiful bird flew into and around the store in a somewhat bewildered manner. At last it was captured and killed.

—The only trace so far heard of Geo. Coleman is the report brought into the city by Mr. Alexander of Saanich, who says that he observed a stranger, who was acting very peculiarly, yesterday, on the beach near the Indian rancherie in Saanich. From the description given of this person he is supposed to be the missing Coleman.

—Kelly, the alleged murderer of Baird in the Rockies, who was arrested by Chief Murray and Sergeant McRae, of Winnipeg, a couple of weeks ago, and is now confined at Crookston, has been further remanded pending the reception of a warrant from the west, which has been mailed by Major Steele to Chief Murray.

—List of letters detained for postage: Chas. Jno. Spencer, (of Brockley, Eng.), Victoria, B. C.; Miss Crossland, Chicago, Ill.; Wm. Merryfield, Cowichan, B. C.; Wm. POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

SATURDAY, Sept. 26.

Alfred Smith and Susan, a klootchman, charged with being drunk, plead guilty, and were fined $5 each, or one week's imprisonment.

Jos. Flang and Edward Boghn, charged with fighting on Store street, were fined $5 each or one month.

The Cumyow Forgery Case.

Charge of forgery against Cumyow resumed from Thursday.

Mr. E. M. Johnson, recalled—To Mr. Theo. Davie—Remember preparing a lease at the close of the year 1883 in the name of Cumyow; I believe Wong Sin Chu was a joint lessee in that lease with Cumyow. I do not think the name of King Tye appeared in the lease; cannot tell if there were other names; the lease was never completed; it would have been executed if the lessors had used due diligence in obtaining signatures. The business to be carried on in the premises proposed to be leased was to be that of a wholesale and retail tailor. Do not remember the name of proposed company. I think Tai Chong or Cumyow and Goodsore paid me for drawing up the lease; the arrangements were made on Tai Soong's premises by Cumyow.

To the Magistrate—I never had any reason to suppose Cumyow was a partner in the King Tye company, except from what he told me himself. I know of another promissory note signed by Cumyow with the name of the firm, which the King Tye Co. now repudiate. I believed Cumyow when he told me he was a partner in the concern.

Mr. Davie referred to the evidence of Mr. Johnson to show that a partnership was proposed between Cumyow and the others. There were several other circumstances to prove Cumyow was a partner. He could bring forward at least forty instances where Cumyow signed the name of the firm. If his honor required prima facie evidence of partnership it would lead to such another case as the Kwong Lee Co. case, in which the jury failed to agree after being locked up all night. The learned counsel quoted authorities to prove that even if Cumyow had been guilty of intent to defraud Mr. E. M. Johnson was a partner to the crime in consenting to accept the firm's name in payment of a private debt. However, it was quite clear there had been no attempt to defraud.

Mr. W. F. Wood, sworn—Am in business here; have had dealings with the firm of King Tye & Co. at several times; dealt in every case with Cumyow, and when I called upon the firm have been always refered to Cumyow. Have taken promissory notes several times which were signed by Cumyow in the name of the firm. The last note I got from him was signed King Tye Co. per Cumyow, manager, other notes were simply signed King Tye Co. Their notes were for the ordinary concerns of the company. Have always understood Cumyow had an interest in the business.

To E. M. Johnson—Have received from Cumyow at least four or five notes within the last fifteen months. None of the notes signed by the King Tye Co. were dishonored; Cumyow could have met them himself, but was not likely he would do so as the goods were delivered to the firm.

To the Magistrate—The notes were always signed in King Tye's office, the last one I received was signed in the presence of a stout Chinaman. I only know Cumyow was a partner by his own statement, and by what I heard last night.

Mr. G. H. Burns, sworn:—I am manager of the Bank of British North America; have had a good deal of King Tye's paper in our hands lately, principally for collection. W. Cumyow invariably transacted the business; I do not receive the payments, and therefore cannot tell who paid them.

Mr. Geo. Gillespie, accountant Bank of B. C., gave similar evidence, and the case was adjourned till Monday, 12th Oct.

IMPORTANT SALE

Of Steam and Sailing Crafts To-day.

Messrs. J. P. Davies & Co., for the assignee, to-day sold the steam schooner Thornton, 36 tons, to Mr. J. A. Sayward for $1, subject to liens to the extent of $4,513.33; the same gentleman purchased the Anna Beck, 35 tons for $1 and a lien of $6490; the Grace, 87 tons, for $1 and $13,457.77 of a lien; the Dolphin, 60 10-100 tons, $1 and $13,457.77 lien. Mr. Sayward likewise purchased a one-half interest in the schooner Bonanza, subject to a lien of $3440, for $1. Her tonnage is 96 18-100; the half interest in the W. P. Sayward, 59 79-100 tons, for the same figure. The lien on this vessel was $3885; $1 also bought the Rustler, 28 24-100 tons, subject to a claim of $1,572.50. The one-tenth interest in the Beaver was purchased by Mr. Henry Saunders for $600. The sale of the Barbara Boscowitz has been postponed until the 20th of October.

OFF FOR CHINA.

Sending Home the Heathen Celestial by the Hundred.

The bark Alden Besse, (812 tons) O'Brien, master, will leave this port on or before the 10th proximo for Hongkong, calling in at Honolulu en voyage. Capt. O'Brien, who was formerly first mate of the sunken steamship Umatilla, will relieve British Columbia of some 370 Celestials who are going to seek the land of the Flowery Kingdom. The ship will also carry two or three cabin passengers, one of whom will be a bona fide Chinaman interested in the shipment of the slaves at least so it is said. Capt. O'Brien is an officer and a gentleman in every sence of the term and we wish him bon voyage with his celestial cargo and a speedy return to this port without it, for orders or with tea.

Tonsorial Operations in the East.

Pursuant to an order received from the Provincial Secretary this morning, directing Gaoler Hatcheson to enforce the clipping of prisoners' hair to one inch in length, a representative of THE TIMES was present at the commencement of the programme, which was begun on the Chinese prisoners. Seven were deprived of their queues, the barbers being deserters from H. M. Navy. Although the Chinese were loth to lose their queues, they were submissive, with the exception of the first two, but the stern discipline of Gaoler Hutcheson prevailed, and the fate of the queue was inevitable. The queues were labelled and will be returned to their owners when their terms of incarceration expires.

Only a Farmer's Daughter.

At the Theatre Comique this evening the play of "Only a Farmer's Daughter," will be put on the boards by a first class company which arrived this morning in care of Mr. Beede. This company has played in the Fry Opera House, Seattle, several nights to large and appreciative houses, who were delighted with the repertoire of the company. On one occasion the box receipts amounted to $435, "Only a Farmer's Daughter" was played in New York for over two hundred nights in succession. They should be greeted with a bumper house to-night.

"How's Your Liver?"

In the comic opera of "The Mikado" his imperial highness says:

"To make, to some extent,
Each evil Liver
A running river
Of harmless merriment."

A nobler task than making evil livers, rivers of harmless merriment no person, king or layman, could take upon himself. The liver among the ancients was considered the source of all a man's evil impulses, and the chances are ten to one to-day that if one's liver is in an ugly condition of discontent, someone's head will be mashed before night!

"How's your liver?" is equivalent to the inquiry: Are you a bear or an angel to-day?

Nine-tenths of the "pure-cussedness," the actions for divorce, the curtain lectures, the family rows, not to speak of murders, crimes and other calamities are prompted by the irritating effect of the inactivity of the liver upon the brain. Fothergill, the great specialist, says this and he knows. He also knows such catastrophies nothing equals Warner's safe cure renowned throughout the world, as a maker of

A running river
Of harmless merriment."

SUPREME COURT.

(Before the Hon. Mr. Justice McCreight.)

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 25.

Habeas corpus—The Kootenai case. Victor, an Indian charged with murder, was brought up on habeas corpus on application of Mr. Bole. It appeared from the affidavit of the prisoner, that he was in custody since 12th of December, 1883, and that there was no legal evidence against him.

The judge ordered that the prisoner be discharged. Mr. Bole for the prisoner.

Oyez! Oyez!

From Kamloops we hear that a notice has been posted on the Court House announcing the fact that a certain New Westminster barrister will attend the assizes to be held there on the 5th October. This seems a little like circus advertising, but we trust the learned gentleman's wit will not prove so heavy as that of the average clown.

Social Tea Party.

The members of the Blue Ribbon club will hold an entertainment this evening, consisting of refreshments and literary exercises. The meetings of this society are generally interesting and those who attend to-night will be well satisfied. Mr. J. H. Innes, of Esquimalt, will preside.

Granite Creek Shooting Case.

Louis Lauzet a cowboy, charged with shooting James Newland, with intent to murder, has been brought down to New Westminster gaol. The case excites much public interest. Mr. Bole is retained to defend prisoner.

When symptoms of malaria appear in any form, take Ayer's Ague Cure at once, to prevent the development of the disease, and continue until health is restored, as it surely will be by the use of this remedy. A cure is warranted in every instance.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellency by any new candidate for public favor.

Extradition.

Winslow D. Morgan, the alleged murderer from Montana, was, to-day, remanded by the Chief Justice to Saturday next, the third October.

King Tye Company.

With reference to the special notice in to-day's Colonist signed King Tye & Co., I would beg to inform the trade and public generally that I was not, as stated, discharged from business connected with that firm.

In May, 1884, I became manager in this firm and up to yesterday, when I tendered my resignation. It is easy to see that all transactions made by me personally, or under my signature as representative of the firm, must be valid, and for which King Tye Co. are responsible.

The sole cause of my resignation was a disagreement with my only resident partner.
